

Understanding maladaptation in Africa: Informing best practice, policy and investment

Date: 5th Sept. 2023

Time: 07:00 – 08.00 AM

The session aims to:

1. Facilitate the exchange of information and experiences between different subregions in Africa and stakeholders.
2. Strengthen the knowledge base on maladaptation in the region
3. Create a space to foster coordination and coherence among different sectors and levels of governance to ensure that adaptation efforts are integrated into policies, plans, and strategies.

The participants will be guided through an interactive role-playing session which will highlight the factors that contribute to maladaptation

The AGNES Africa is a not-for-profit continental think tank of African experts and practitioners that provides evidence-based technical support to the African Governments and the African Group of Negotiators (AGN) that enhance effective engagement in the international and national climate change policy formulation, implementation and decision making.
